MARION A. ZIONCHECK

VISUAL ARCHIVE — VOLUME 2

Contemporary News Coverage & Family Battles

Arrests, hospital stays, estate fights, will contests, Ruby legal issues

18 images in this volume

1:24
WASHINGTON STATE
← Back to results
Result 14 of 683
OFFICE IN WHICH FAREWELL MESSAGE WAS WRITTEN
Desk Is Shown As Congressman Left It As He Ran to Leap From Window
Search this record
Zioncheck, Marion A. (Marion Ant
t.libraries.wsu.edu
Item Description

1:28

State history. State officials. U.S. Representatives. Zioncheck, Marion A. 1936-08-08. p. 1

CONGRESS PLAYBOY LEAPS TO HIS DEATH AT SEATTLE

Zioncheck Hurls Body Out of Window of Office Block

LANDS NEAR HIS WIFE

Spectacular Career of Solon Is Ended by Suicide After Sessions In East

Seattle, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Rep. Marion A. Zioncheck (D-Wash), Seattle's playboy congressman, fell hatless and coatless to his death tonight from a fifth-story window of his campaign headquarters office in the Arctic building here. Coroner Otto H. Mittelstadt said "all indications pointed to Zioncheck's death being suicide," but an inquest will be held Friday, August 14. The congressman's body struck the pavement a few feet from where his bride, the former Rubye Louise Nix of Texarkana, Tex., was waiting in an automobile for her husband to come from the office. She became hysterical, collapsed and was taken to a hospital.

Returned to Race.

Zioncheck had announced his withdrawal from the congressional race last Saturday and on Tuesday had filed his declaration of candidacy for nomination on the democratic ticket.

He said he had decided to run only after his mother said she wanted him to prove to the people that he was "neither crazy nor foolish."

The fun-loving representative's career started as far back as his college days at the University of Washington. There he was elected president of the student body. Some time later he was thrown into the frosh pond on the campus by a band of hooded students.

Zioncheck had launched a campaign against the management of the football team and fraternities.

He was first elected to congress in 1932. He was reelected in 1934.

He became nationally known last New Year's eve when he plugged in all the telephones in his Washington, D. C., apartment house.

Nabbed for Speeding.

Later he was arrested for speeding in the nation's capital. This was followed by several other arrests for similar violations.

He married Miss Rubye Louise Nix of Texarkana, Texas, a WPA stenographer in Washington, in Annapolis, Md., April 28.

His marriage followed a whirlwind courtship.

Mr. and Mrs. Zioncheck had a rollicking honeymoon trip to Florida and the Virgin islands.

About this time his mother, Mrs. Frances Zioncheck, of Seattle, suffered a nervous breakdown, which physicians said was due to her son's antics.

On his return from honeymooning he and Mrs. Zioncheck went to New York City where they attracted throngs by wading in a pond in Radio City.

He went back to Washington, D. C., only to face trouble with his landlady.

Bad Boy of Congress.

Search this record
Zioncheck, Marion A. (Marion Art
content.libraries.wsu.edu

1:28

State history. State officials. U.S. Representatives. Zioncheck, Marion A. 1936-08-08. p. 2

Washington, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Representative Zioncheck became known as the "bad boy of congress" as a result of a series of spectacular episodes here during his last term in the house.

Elected to represent the first district in Washington, in the Roosevelt landslide, he came to the national capital with a reputation for being a "coming young man" and an advanced liberal.

Aside from his congressional activities in the last year, he was in and out of jail and court several times on speeding charges; married Miss Rubye Nix, a WPA stenographer, after a whirlwind courtship; was confined to Gallinger hospital for mental observation; and escaped from the Sheppard and Enoch Pratt hospital at Twoson, Md., by jumping over a wall.

Beer Bottles for F. D. R.

He was taken to Gallinger hospital for observation after he had climaxed previous escapades by appearing at the White House with a satchel filled with empty beer bottles—a present for President Roosevelt.

On that same day he was charged with having speeded down crowded Connecticut avenue in his new roadster, driving on the wrong side of the street and on the sidewalk.

Speeding charges before that had caused his arrest here and in nearby Alexandria, Va., just as he and his bride left on a honeymoon to the Caribbean.

Prior to his detention, Zioncheck had also become involved in legal difficulties with Mrs. Benjamin Scott Young, a magazine writer, who had sub-let her apartment to him when she left for an extended trip.

Says Apartment Ruined.

Upon her return she charged that Zioncheck and his bride had "ruined" her apartment and sought to have them thrown out. The Zionchecks refused to move and Mrs. Young attempted to take possession.

Mrs. Young claimed to have been injured during a midnight scuffle in the apartment and swore out assault warrants against the representative and his wife. Zioncheck's motor car is still held here by the United States marshal's office in connection with the damage suit.

The Zionchecks spent their honeymoon in Puerto Rico and the Virgin islands and created as much excitement there on fishing and dancing parties as they did in Washington, and upon their return continued celebrating in New York.

The Zioncheck Zipp

Included among the fun-l gressman's episodes in Ne were:

Concocting the "Zioncheck zipper" of equal parts of rye and honey with a sprig of mint.

Wading in the Prometheus pool at Rockefeller plaza.

Holding his bride by the hair in an Apache dance at a night club.

Just a month ago Police Judge Walter J. Casey, after several continuances, set the assault charges against the Seattle congressman for trial on next January 19 on the assumption Zioncheck would be back for the convening of congress in January.

To escape from the Maryland institution in which he was confined in June Zioncheck scaled a seven foot wire fence surrounding an exercise yard, outdistanced attendants in a running race, and hid all night in the woods.

Eludes Search Party.

He eluded a searching party by hitch-hiking a ride into Washington and hid in his Capitol hill office for several hours before he was discovered.

Capitol police then prevented metropolitan police from arresting him until Kenneth Romney, sergeant-at-arms of the house, acting as mediator, arranged to secure safe conduct for Zioncheck back to Seattle.

Zioncheck traveled by train to Chicago and attempted to fly from there to Seattle, but airline officials after an argument at the airfield, refused to accept him as a passenger and he traveled on by train.

Associates at Funeral.

Expressing deep grief at the death of Representative Zioncheck, Kenneth A. Romney, sergeant-at-arms of the house, said he expected Speaker Bankhead of Alabama would name a committee of representatives tomorrow to attend the funeral.

Romney, who assisted Zioncheck in every possible way during his troubles here, said he was "deeply grieved" at the congressman's death.

"He (Zioncheck) left here with a serious persecution complex," Romney said, "probably his fate would have been the same had he remained here, and I am glad that I assisted him to go to the beside of his sick mother before he died."

Romney added that if the funeral

Search this record
Zioncheck, Marion A. (Marion Art
content.libraries.wsu.edu

1:38
WASHINGTON STATE UNIVERSITY
← Back to results
Result 45 of 683

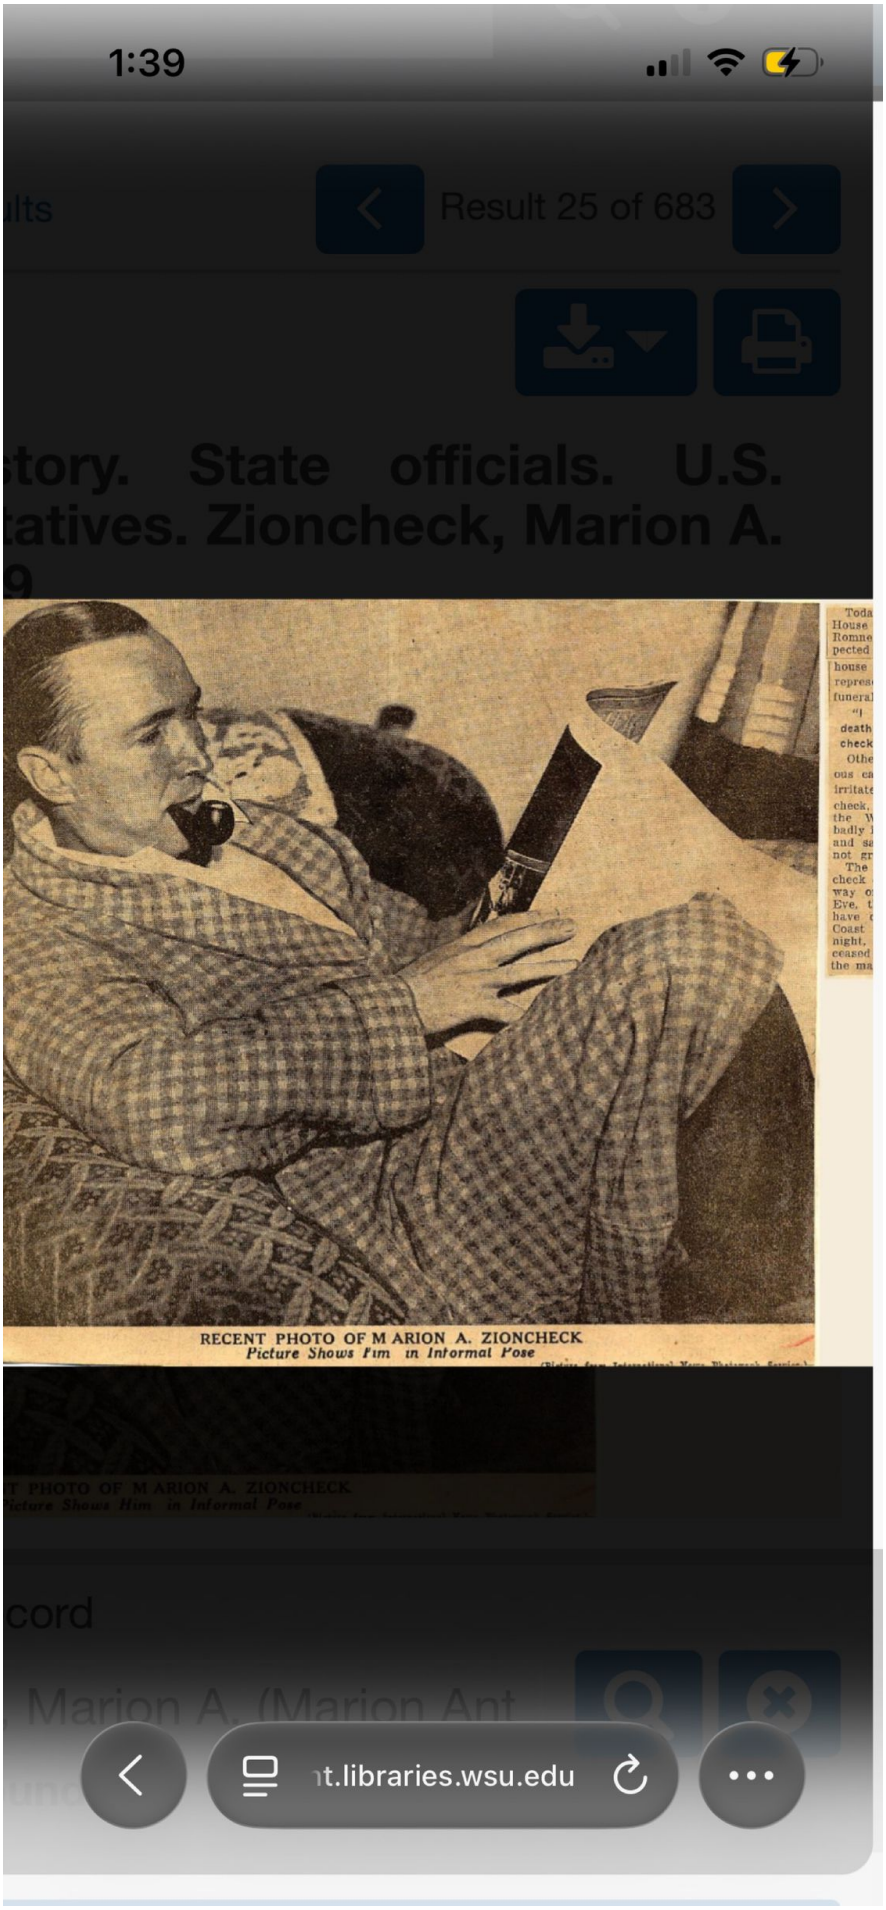

Death Ends Capers of Representative Zioncheck

A fall from his fifth-floor window in the Arctic club, Seattle, believed to have been suicidal, ended the career last night of Marion A. Zioncheck, eccentric democrat representative in congress from Washington state. He is shown here in his office in Washington, D. C., in one of his more serious moments with his wife, who was with him in the room from which he fell and who collapsed. (Oregonian-Wide World photo.)

A fall from his fifth-floor window in the Arctic club, Seattle, believed to have been suicidal, ended the career last night of Marion A. Zioncheck, eccentric democrat representative in congress from Washington state. He is shown here in his office in Washington, D. C., in one of his more serious moments with his wife, who was with him in the room from which he fell and who collapsed. (Oregonian-Wide World photo.)

Search this record
Zioncheck, Marion A. (Marion Ant
32 Results found
Item Description
content.libraries.wsu.edu
Original index
State history. State officials. U.S. Representatives

1:39
Result 25 of 683
tory. State officials. U.S. atives. Zioncheck, Marion A.
RECENT PHOTO OF M ARION A. ZIONCHECK Picture Shows Him in Informal Pose cord
t.libraries.wsu.edu

1:42

← Back to results

Result 42 of 683

State history. State officials. U.S. Representatives. Zioncheck, Marion A. 1936-05-31

ZIONCHECK LANDS IN CAPITAL JAIL

Hip Broken, Claim; Bride, Crying, Quits Apartment as Drinks Are Poured

WASHINGTON, May 30 (AP)—Representative Marion A. Zioncheck, democrat, Washington, was arrested tonight on a charge of disorderly conduct. He was released by the police after almost two hours in jail when his secretary posted $25 collateral.

The money was posted by Marion Young, Zioncheck's secretary, and police said the congressman elected to forfeit bail and would not appear in police court.

Zioncheck slipped out through the back door of the station house when released.

Aide Brings Clothes

His attorney, L. Q. C. Lamar, said: "He's gone to Atlantic City," and hurried away. He added that Zioncheck, who had been brought into the station barefoot and coatless, wore clothes brought to him by his secretary.

John W. Crabs, manager of the apartment house in which the congressman has been living, said he called the police after Zioncheck had hurled bottles, dishes and a typewriter out of the window of his apartment.

"Nobody was home except the congressman, and he must have lost his temper all by himself," Crabs said.

Mrs. Benjamin Scott Young, who claimed her hip was broken in a midnight scuffle in the apartment she had sublet to Zioncheck, called a lawyer to her hospital bed today to discuss possible action.

Zioncheck Serves Drinks

Meantime, Zioncheck, clad in pajamas and dressing gown, served drinks to a crowd of guests. Tearful and visibly upset, his bride finally stalked out of the disordered apartment and into that of a neighbor.

"Whoopee" was the congressman's only reply when asked about the series of escapades that has stretched from New York to Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, and from Washington to Pittsburgh and points south, including four arrests since last January 1.

Woman Found in Hall

Police and ambulance attendants, answering an early call to Zioncheck's apartment this morning, found Mrs. Young moaning in the hall, just outside the congressman's door.

"They threw me out five or six times," she sobbed hysterically. "They broke my hip and left me lying here most of the night. Don't take me to the hospital. Take me to the police station so I can swear out a warrant."

Zioncheck Provides "Answer"

As Dr. George Lemes Hewsky put an emergency splint on Mrs. Young's right leg, Zioncheck thrust his head through a crack in the door and said:

"Why should we let her stay here? This isn't a charitable institution."

Dr. Lemes Hewsky reported to police that Mrs. Young showed signs of having a fractured hip. The injury at that time had not been verified by X-ray.

Acts Held Legal

Going to his office at the capitol this afternoon, Zioncheck gave this as part of his version:

"I asked her to leave several times, each time in a decent manner. She refused each time to leave.

"Under the law and under my lease this apartment is my home and she was legally and properly ejected."

After describing her side of various events during the night, Mrs. Young said that early this morning the congressman hit her with a broom, shouting, "I'm a witch and my broom won't behave." He capered around the room, she said, riding the broomstick and waving his beret.

Zioncheck invited [illegible] bystanders into [illegible]. There he played with [illegible] pins, poured generous [illegible] crowd, and posed for pictures.

Mrs. Zioncheck tried to get breakfast, but could find no food in the pantry. She repeatedly asked her husband's "guests" to leave the apartment.

Later she walked angrily out of the room and into another apartment down the hall, refusing to say whether she and her husband had quarreled.

The apartment where the difficulty occurred was sub-leased to Zioncheck last winter. Mrs. Young, a magazine writer, recently returned to reclaim it after, she said, she had complaints from the apartment house.

In an effort to obtain possession, Mrs. Young went to the rooms yesterday and refused to leave.

"The police wouldn't arrest him because he was a congressman," she said as she was placed in the ambulance on a stretcher. "The time has come when we've got to see whether this country is going to be run by bolshevism or Americanism."

Age Given as 92

When police arrived at the apartment, she demanded:

"You saw me thrown out of my own apartment about six times last night. Why didn't you help me then? I never heard of such a thing."

When officers asked her age for use in an official report, she said she was 92 years old. She refused to let the officers change the figure to 42 in their report.

Search this record

Zioncheck, Marion A. (Marion Ant

26 Results found

Item De[illegible]

content.libraries.wsu.edu

1:52

← Back to results

Result 34 of 683

State history. State officials. U.S. Representatives. Zioncheck, Marion A. 1936-08-12

THOUSANDS PAY FINAL TRIBUTE TO ZIONCHECK

Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Form Honor Guard; Funeral Procession One Mile Long

Many thousands of people from all walks of life yesterday paid their final respects to Congressman Marion A. Zioncheck, who leaped four stories to his death Friday evening.

The Senator Auditorium, where the services were held, had standing room only. As many more were crowded in the vicinity of 7th Ave. and Union St., which had been completely c t off to traffic at the start of the ceremony.

PROCESSION MILE LONG

The funeral procession, which was more than a mile in length, made its way to Evergreen Memorial Park.

Sorrow and sympathy went out to the Zioncheck family. An enormous mass of flowers filled the front of the auditorium—sent by Democratic clubs, other organizations and individuals.

Lying in state at the foot of the speaker's stand, the body was viewed by a long line which filed past. At the foot and head of the coffin stood United States marine guards. A detachment from the Sixth Engineers at Fort Lawton and a detachment of United States sailors served as guards of honor at points throughout the auditorium. A special detachment of police officers was necessary to handle the crowd outside the building.

OVERWORK BLAMED

The eulogy was delivered by Fred Shorter, who declared that the congressman's breakdown and ultimate death was caused by overwork in his diligence on behalf of the people he represented.

Shorter declared it was Congressman Zioncheck's desire "above all things to truly represent the people who had placed their trust in him" by sending him to congress.

"He read every bill before he voted on it," Shorter asserted. "And he often communicated with his constituents—people of all walks of life in Seattle — to find out what they wanted him to do in representing them on some public question."

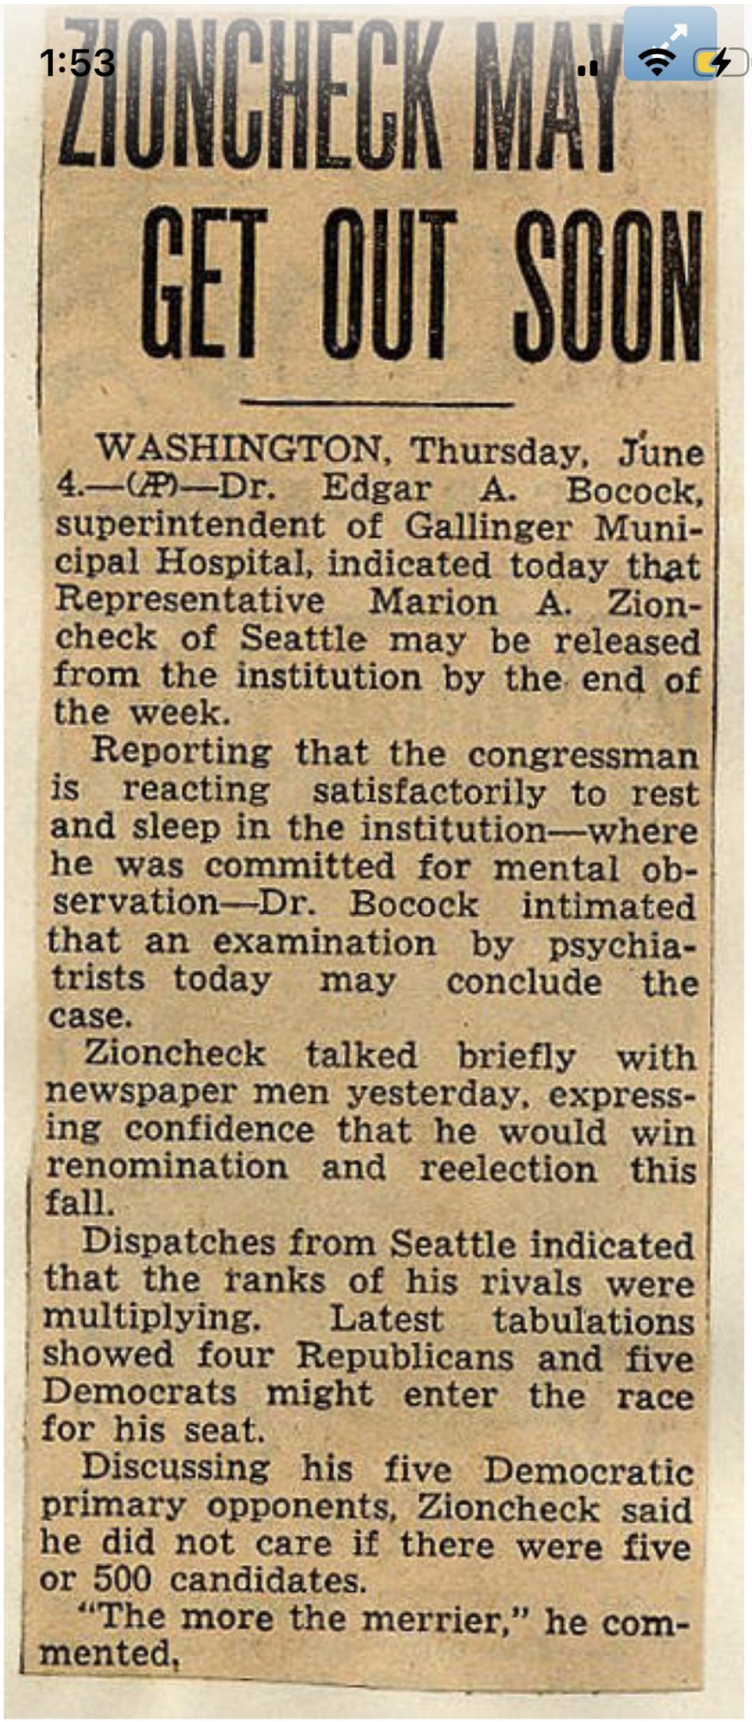

Preliminary music at the service was provided by Magnus Petersen, tenor, and the Magnus Petersen Quartet.

Search this record

Zioncheck, Marion A. (Marion Ant

36 Results found

content.libraries.wsu.edu

ZIONCHECK MAY GET OUT SOON

WASHINGTON, Thursday, June 4.—(AP)—Dr. Edgar A. Bocock, superintendent of Gallinger Municipal Hospital, indicated today that Representative Marion A. Zioncheck of Seattle may be released from the institution by the end of the week.

Reporting that the congressman is reacting satisfactorily to rest and sleep in the institution—where he was committed for mental observation—Dr. Bocock intimated that an examination by psychiatrists today may conclude the case.

Zioncheck talked briefly with newspaper men yesterday, expressing confidence that he would win renomination and reelection this fall.

Dispatches from Seattle indicated that the ranks of his rivals were multiplying. Latest tabulations showed four Republicans and five Democrats might enter the race for his seat.

Discussing his five Democratic primary opponents, Zioncheck said he did not care if there were five or 500 candidates.

"The more the merrier," he commented.

1:53

Search this record

Zioncheck,

content.libraries.wsu.edu

1:58

← Back to results

Result 64 of 683

State history. State officials. U.S. Representatives. Zioncheck, Marion A. 1936-05-07

MRS. ZIONCHECK TAKES THE WHEEL

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., May 6. (AP)—Any thought of collecting the $100 Representative Marion Zioncheck of Washington promised the officer who arrested him for speeding was cast aside by policemen here today—Mrs. Zioncheck is doing the driving now.

The pretty bride didn't say she wanted to keep the $100 in the family, but she was at the wheel of their 12-cylinder roadster when the congressman went riding today.

Zioncheck looked today to the air for further fast movement in keeping with his present passenger policy. He and Mrs. Zioncheck booked passage on an air liner tomorrow for San Juan, Porto Rico.

Zioncheck offered the $100 to any local officer catching him in a traffic violation when he promised to help Miami observe national safety week

Search this record

Zioncheck

content.libraries.wsu.edu

20 Results found

tory. State offi

atives. Zioncheck

9

1:59

hs in Connection With Sensational Death

Zioncheck had gone to congress two years ago, a political unknown, as a champion of the downtrodden. He announced August 1 he would not run for reelection, changed his mind August 4 and filed his candidacy.

The hat and coat of Representative Zioncheck are shown as they lay on the floor of his campaign office after his five-story death plunge.

Representative Zioncheck was jovial for his picture two days before his death. Zioncheck are, left to right: Ed Clark, San Zioncheck and Jack Clark, student at The Clark brothers had visited Zioncheck

William Nadeau, brother-in-law and sentative Marion A. Zioncheck told auth

cord

Marion A. (Marion A

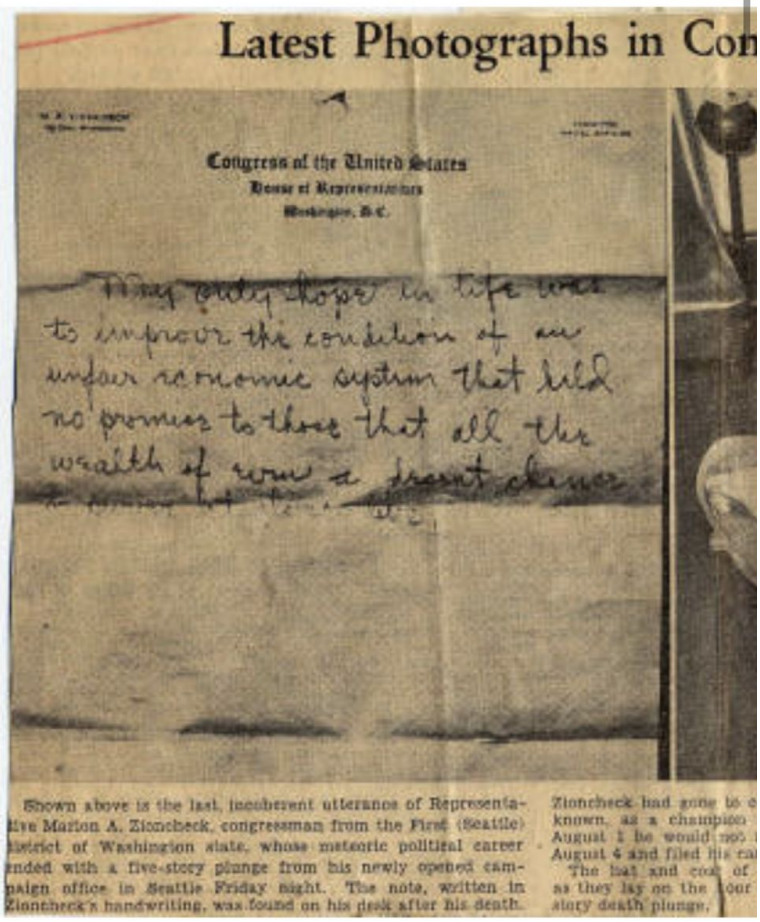

content.libraries.wsu.edu

1:59

State history.

Representative 1936-08-09

Latest Photographs in Con

Congress of the United States
House of Representatives
Washington, D.C.

May only hope in life was to improve the condition of an unfair economic system that held no promise to those that all the wealth of now a front door

Shown above is the last, incoherent utterance of Representative Marion A. Zioncheck, congressman from the First (Seattle) district of Washington state, whose meteoric political career ended with a five-story plunge from his newly opened campaign office in Seattle Friday night. The note, written in Zioncheck's handwriting, was found on his desk after his death.

Zioncheck had gone to c
known, as a champion
August 1 he would not
August 4 and filed his ca
The hat and coat of
as they lay on the four story death plunge.

Search this record

Zioncheck, Mari

content.libraries.wsu.edu

2:06

. State officials. U.S.
es. Zioncheck, Marion A.

The Marines, Cries Worried Rep. Zioncheck,

erman and refreshments ut in a small boat. The liked the refreshments work and was soon un-nfluence of the refresh-

k landed, pushed the
into the car and started an.
k, driving, crashed his car into a truck. The anded a settlement for ould hold up a congess-icheck said. The truck cked the road with his called a policeman. Again protested that he was

st. The policeman per-to proceed.

d Back With Negro

his hotel, Zioncheck herman, sleeping on the e rear part of the car.
turned back—Mrs. Zioning this time. Reaching ioncheck picked out a hich he believed the fish-
d, knocked at the gate,
nced:
here. I'm going to leave er of the home said the

was unknown to him
ed the door into the con-face.
k took the wheel and
car into the locked gate.
r asserted the gate was He ran into his home, got nd came out waving it, Zioncheck to produce own so that they might ut.
nchecks started again for —Mrs. Zioncheck driving.
heck found both her pas-he congressman and the asleep when she arrived eymoon hotel.

The irrepressible Marion A. Zioncheck, Seattle, Wash., congressman, and his irresistible bride, are pictured in deep water at Miami, where they are honeymooning. The deep water in this case was on the beach instead of traffic courts. Marriage has so reformed the speeding solon that he has offered $100 to any Miami policeman who catches him violating a traffic law.

ion A. (Marion Ant

t.libraries.wsu.edu

2:09

WASHINGTON STATE UNIVERSITY

Back to results

Result 106 of 683

State history. State officials. U.S. Representatives. Zioncheck, Marion A. 1937-02-09

Zioncheck Daught[illegible] Fight Over Estate

The two daughters of Mrs. Frances Zioncheck, and sisters of the late Congressman Marion A. Zioncheck will appear in Superior Court March 2 in a battle over their mother's estate, it was revealed yesterday as Miss Norma Zioncheck petitioned in Probate Court to set aside a will which left the bulk of a $6,000 estate to Mrs. Ann Nadeau, Mrs. Zioncheck's other daughter.

Miss Zioncheck says she and Mrs. Nadeau should share the estate equally.

Search this record

Zioncheck, Marion A. (Marion Ant

26 [illegible]

t.libraries.wsu.edu

Item Description

2:13

State history. State officials. U.S. Representatives. Zioncheck, Marion A. 1937-04-30

NURSE DEFENDS ZIONCHECK WILL

Mrs. Frances Zioncheck, mother of the late Congressman Marion A. Zioncheck, was an "exceptionally intelligent and decisive woman," Dr. Thomas Ratigan, Seattle physician, testified today in Superior Judge Howard M. Findley's court, where Mrs. Zioncheck's two daughters are battling over her will. Dr. Ratigan said he attended Mrs. Zioncheck for two years prior to her death last fall.

The physician said that Mrs. Zioncheck showed no signs of mental incompetence but always was alert mentally whenever he visited her, although she sometimes seemed worried over Congressman Zioncheck's "troubles" in Washington, D. C.

Nurse Testifies

Mrs. Celia Kempher, practical nurse who assisted Mrs. Zioncheck in drawing up the contested will, said the woman mentally was competent at the time. Mrs. Kempher said that Mrs. Zioncheck suffered from an halucination that there was no food in the house several weeks after the drawing of the will and after she was worried over Congressman Zioncheck having been confined in an eastern institution.

Attorney Ivan Merrick, representing the estate's administratrix, Mrs. Ann Nadeau, a daughter of Mrs. Zioncheck, failed yes... an effort to halt the t... contended that Newma... attorney for Miss Norma Z..., another daughter, who is contesting the will, had not offered sufficient evidence.

Widow Excused

Mrs. Rubye Nix Zioncheck, attractive widow of the congressman, left the witness stand late yesterday, excused from further witness duty. She refused to comment on whether she would leave immediately for Hollywood to enter motion pictures. Mrs. Zioncheck arrived here by airplane from Hollywood Wednesday. She and Mrs. Nadeau are legal opponents in another action over Mrs. Frances Zioncheck's estate.

Judge Findley yesterday halted Merrick's questioning of Mrs. Zioncheck relative to parties and escapades in which her husband figured in Washington prior to and after her marriage. Merrick said he wished to show how the former congressman spent money which was sent him by his mother, but Judge Findley held the recital was not pertinent.

Hallucination Told

Dr. Paul Van Arsdel verified Mrs. Rubye Zioncheck's testimony relative to the older woman's "hallucinations that she had no money and no food." The doctor told how relatives tried to keep news of the congressman's escapades from his mother.

First defense witness called yesterday was George Kempher, a former resident at the Zioncheck home. He told how he and his mother, Mrs. Frances Zioncheck's nurse, drew the will, which is challenged by Clark's witnesses on the ground that Mrs. Frances Zioncheck was incompetnet mentally at the time she signed the will.

Search this record

Zioncheck, Marion A. (Marion Ant

27 Results found

Item Description

Original inde...

content.libraries.wsu.edu

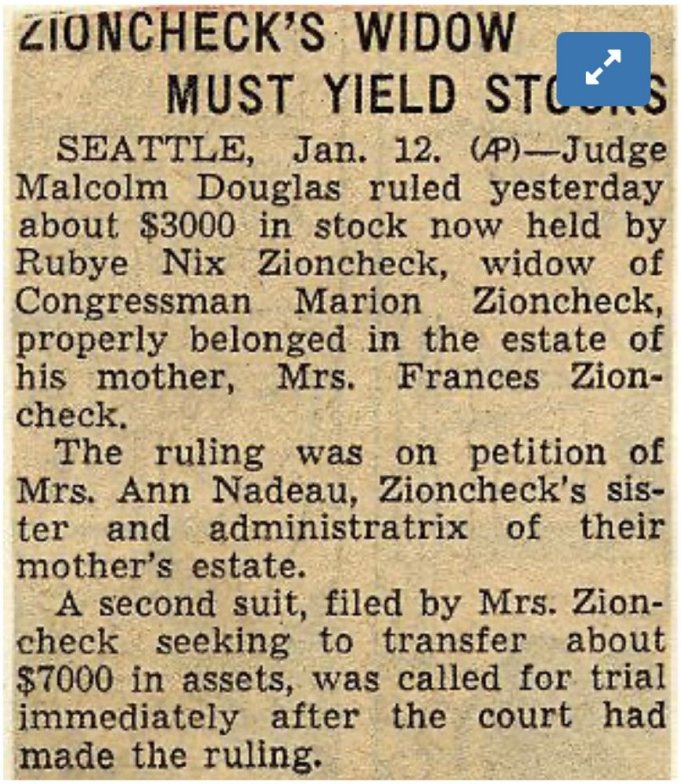

State history. State officials. U.S. Representatives.

2:14

← Back to results

Result 116 of 683

State history. State officials. U.S. Representatives. Zioncheck, Marion A. 1938-01-13

ZIONCHECK'S WIDOW MUST YIELD STOCKS

SEATTLE, Jan. 12. (AP)—Judge Malcolm Douglas ruled yesterday about $3000 in stock now held by Rubye Nix Zioncheck, widow of Congressman Marion Zioncheck, properly belonged in the estate of his mother, Mrs. Frances Zioncheck.

The ruling was on petition of Mrs. Ann Nadeau, Zioncheck's sister and administratrix of their mother's estate.

A second suit, filed by Mrs. Zioncheck seeking to transfer about $7000 in assets, was called for trial immediately after the court had made the ruling.

Search this record

Zioncheck, Marion A. (Marion Ant

19 Results found

Item Description

Original index title

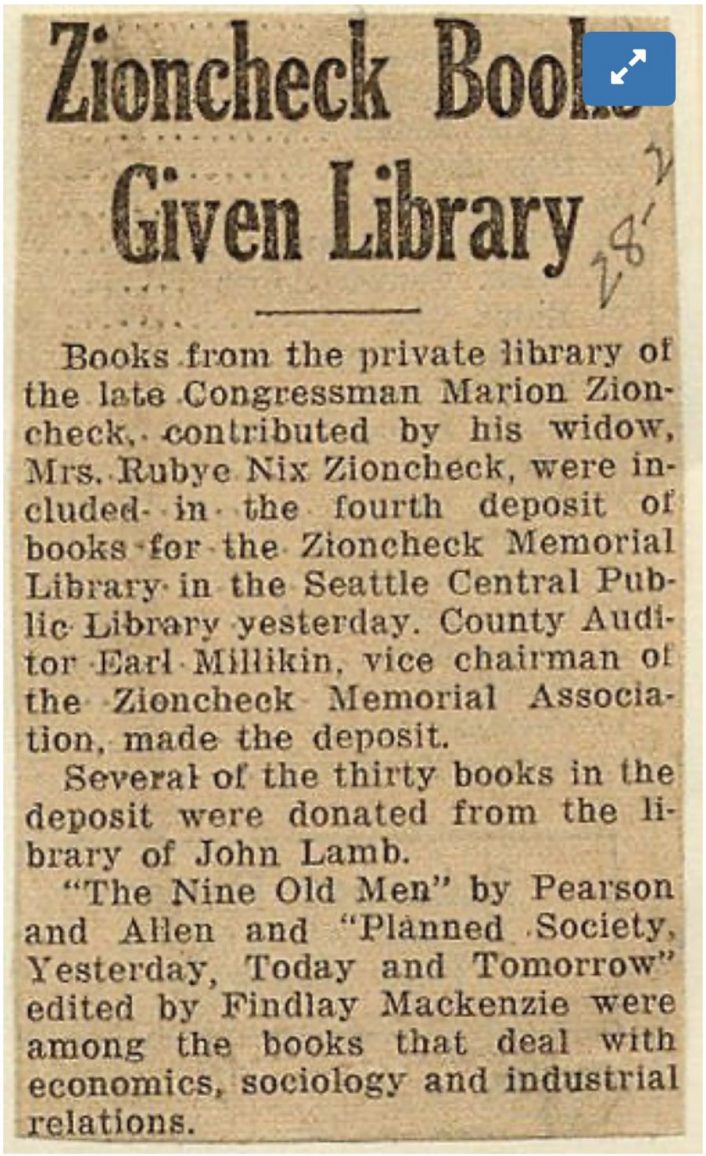

State history. State officials. U.S. Representatives. Zioncheck, Mar

content.libraries.wsu.edu

Newspaper

2:15

State history. State officials. U.S. Representatives. Zioncheck, Marion A. 1937-06-18

Zioncheck Books Given Library

Books from the private library of the late Congressman Marion Zioncheck, contributed by his widow, Mrs. Rubye Nix Zioncheck, were included in the fourth deposit of books for the Zioncheck Memorial Library in the Seattle Central Public Library yesterday. County Auditor Earl Millikin, vice chairman of the Zioncheck Memorial Association, made the deposit.

Several of the thirty books in the deposit were donated from the library of John Lamb.

"The Nine Old Men" by Pearson and Allen and "Planned Society, Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" edited by Findlay Mackenzie were among the books that deal with economics, sociology and industrial relations.

Search this record

Zioncheck, Marion A. (Marion Ant

19 Results found

t.libraries.wsu.edu

Item Description

2:15

WASHINGTON STATE UNIVERSITY

Back to results

Result 122 of 683

State history. State officials. U.S. Representatives. Zioncheck, Marion A. 1937-01-19

KIN FIGHT OVER ZIONCHECK WILL

After two hours of testimony which was interspersed with frequent sharp verbal encounters between opposing counsel, Superior Judge James T. Lawler late yesterday continued until Saturday the questioning of Mrs. Ann Nadeau, sister of the late Congressman Marion A. Zioncheck, about a will in the probated estate of her mother, Mrs. Frances Zioncheck.

Attorneys John C. Stevenson and Ivan Merrick, representing Mrs. Nadeau, objected repeatedly to questions asked Mrs. Nadeau by Newman Clark, counsel for Mrs. Rubye Nix Zioncheck, pretty widow of the congressman.

Questions Held 'Fishing'

"This is nothing but a 'fishing expedition'," Stevenson charged, as Clark asked Mrs. Nadeau [illegible] purported earlier will ma[illegible]s. Frances Zioncheck in [illegible]r son had been made the substantial beneficiary.

Stevenson said Clark was attempting to "fish" evidence to be used in pending litigation between the two women over Zioncheck's $7,500 estate.

Clark insisted a state law entitled his client to probe into the affairs of Mrs. Zioncheck if there were reason to suppose the affairs affected her husband's estate.

Mrs. Nadeau Weeps

As the attorneys argued, Mrs. Nadeau wept several times when her mother's name was mentioned.

The questioning was continued when Clark charged Mrs. Nadeau had not complied with a court citation to take records to the hearing. Mrs. Nadeau was instructed to produce the records Saturday.

Later in the hearing, Mrs. Rubye Zioncheck, who also had been cited, was questioned by Merrick relative to asserted sale of certain stocks which the congressman purchased before his death. After Mrs. Zioncheck said she did not know how much of the estate remained, the citation against her was dismissed.

Search this record

t.libraries.wsu.edu

person or persons who remain unknown.

7:50 LTE

John M. Bolton

Member of the Illinois House of Representatives for the Second District

In office
1931 – July 9, 1936

Personal details

Born	October 5, 1901[1] Chicago, Illinois, U.S.
Died	July 9, 1936 (aged 34) Chicago, Illinois, U.S.
Cause of death	Shooting
Resting place	All Saints Cemetery
Party	Democratic
Education	Chicago Public Schools

en.wikipedia.org