Bolton was born in Chicago and attended Chicago public schools.[1] He was in the floral business and insurance business.[1] A Democrat, he was first elected to the Illinois House of Representatives, representing the Second District, in the fall of 1930, taking office in early 1931.[2][3] He was re-elected in 1932,[4] and in 1934 (unopposed).[5][1]

Bolton was shot to death following a car chase in Chicago shortly after midnight on July 9, 1936.[6] The Associated Press reported that he may have been assassinated by organized crime figures due to his efforts to legalize some forms of betting,[6] and the Chicago Tribune attributed his death to "gangsters" in a page-one story.[7] The Tribune also published photos of Bolton's car, which had crashed at Washtenaw Avenue and Harrison Street, and noted that Bolton had a brother who had been a prohibition gangster.[8] A follow-up story by the United Press reported that Bolton may have been killed because he was unsuccessful in helping some prisoners in the Joliet Penitentiary get parole.[9] Bolton was buried at All Saints Cemetery in Des Plaines.[10] His assailants were not caught and remain unknown.

Chicago Outfit racketeer Fred Smith later informed the FBI that Sam Giancana personally killed Bolton.[11]

Bolton was married and had two foster children at the time of his death.[6]

SOLON'S WIFE FACES ARREST

Assault Warrant Ordered Served on Mrs. Zioncheck at Washington.

WASHINGTON, June 27. (AP)—An assault warrant sworn out recently against Mrs. Rubye Nix Zioncheck, bride of the Washington state representative, was ordered served immediately today by Leslie C. Garnett, the United States attorney for the District of Columbia.

His order followed a demand by Mrs. Benjamin Scott Young, who swore out the warrant after she said she was injured in a scuffle with the Zionchecks over possession of an apartment she had sub-leased to them.

Arrest of Representative and Mrs. Zioncheck on Mrs. Young's charges was postponed when the congressman was committed to Gallinger hospital for mental observation. Court action to determine whether Zioncheck is sane was dismissed here yesterday after relatives agreed to keep him for an indefinite period in the Sheppard and Enoch Pratt hospital at Towson, Md., near Baltimore.

Zioncheck And Bride Battle With Landlady At Apartment

Mrs. Young Taken to Hospital; Wants Warrant for 'Awful People'

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, May 30.—Mrs. Benjamin Scott Young, who was forcibly ejected early today by Representative and Mrs. Marion A. Zoincheck from the apartment she subleased to them, later was taken to Emergency Hospital in an ambulance.

Ambulance attendants said she had a fractured right hip. Mrs. Young said the injury was a direct result of scuffles with the Zioncheks.

"Don't take me to the hospital," Mrs. Young sobbed as she was carried away from the apartment building. "It is more important for me to go to the police station and swear out a warrant for these awful people."

"Mr. Z. Stood on Me"

She told police Zioncheck had "ruined my home, called me vile names and stood on me."

As Mrs. Young sobbed at the hospital that she would "never stop my fight until I put that man in jail," Zioncheck breakfasted with friends.

The apartment where the difficulty occurred was subleased to Zioncheck last winter. Mrs. Young, a magazine writer, recently returned from a South American trip to reclaim it, after she said, she had complaints from the apartment house management.

In an effort to obtain possession, Mrs. Young went to the rooms yesterday and refused to leave.

"The police wouldn't arrest him because he was a congressman," she said as she was placed in an ambulance on a stretcher. "The time has come when we've got to see whether this country is going to be run by bolshevism or Americanism."

Mrs. Young summoned both the ambulance and police this morning. It was the fourth time officers had been called to the apartment since yesterday morning.

She Scolds Police

When police arrived the fourth time she demanded:

"You saw me thrown out of my own apartment about six times last night. Why didn't you help me then? I never heard of such a thing."

When officers asked her age for use in an official report, she said she was 92 years old. She refused to let the officers change the figure to 42 in their report.

There were a swift succession of events after Zioncheck's return to the capital last night from a trip to Pittsburgh.

The congressman had been in his apartment about fifteen minutes when trouble began to brew between the Zioncheks and Mrs. Young.

Mrs. Z. Enraged

Mrs. Zioncheck became enraged over the presence of Mrs. Young, who recently complained vehemently that her antique furniture had been damaged.

"Get out of here," screamed Mrs. Zioncheck, as she rushed from her bedroom to a living room couch on which Mrs. Young had stationed herself, determined to remain in the apartment as long as the congressman and his bride.

"Help!" cried Mrs. Young.

Amid the wailing of the two women, the Seattle congressman emerged from the bedroom and shouted encouragement to his wife.

Drag Her Out, Throw Shoes

After a three-minute scuffle, Mrs. Zioncheck, with her husband's help, dragged Mrs. Young into the hallway, pitching her shoes out behind her.

A crowd gathered and excitement ran high, so high, in fact, that an unknown bystander lost his head, drew a penknife and stabbed a newspaper man in the arm. The reporter was only slightly injured.

Arriving a few minutes later, police were told by Mrs. Zioncheck that she became angry over Mrs. Young's insistence on remaining in the apartment. As the police tried to straighten out the tangle, Mrs. Young went back into the apartment and soddingly took up her post on the couch.

Police Call it 'Civil'

Finally the police left, saying the controversy was a "civil matter."

"I don't know who called us, Buddy," one policeman told a reporter. "Things happen so fast around here it's hard to keep up with them."

The score of neighbors who had gathered in the hallway of the fashionable apartment house began to disperse, but about this time action broke out anew.

This time it was Zioncheck who rushed from the bedroom to pick up Mrs. Young and dump her out of the apartment.

As Mrs. Young lay screaming in the hallway, Mrs. Zioncheck called police.

A near repetition of the first scene followed, with Mrs. Young doggedly returning to the apartment couch and calling for her doctor.

Pleading with the Zioncheks and Mrs. Young to go to bed, the police again insisted it was a civil case and they had no jurisdiction.

Mrs. Young Faints, Too

Earlier in the evening—while the congressman was hurrying back to the capital from Pittsburgh, where he had gone at the invitation of Mayor McNair but failed to see him—Mrs. Young fainted during an argument with Zioncheck's lawyer, J. G. C. Lamar.

A physician was called and she regained consciousness only to repeat that she intended remaining in the apartment.

While this was taking place in the living room of the three-room apartment, Mrs. Zioncheck—who had herself fainted earlier in the day—was reclining in the bedroom.

Zioncheck motored back to Washington last night from Pittsburgh, after a rollicking twelve hours during which he toured the night clubs, addressed a luncheon and was ignored by Mayor McNair.

Seattle's playboy of politics had mixed "zippers," tussled with Ali Baba, the Turkish wrestler, and had a nap on the mayor's desk.

He failed to meet McNair, who invited him to Pittsburgh to address the Henry George Club, dedicated to the originator of the single-tax theory which the mayor champions.

McNair showed up at his office about the time Zioncheck left, but denied any intention of snubbing the honeymooning lawmaker.

Widow Given Possession Of Zioncheck Car

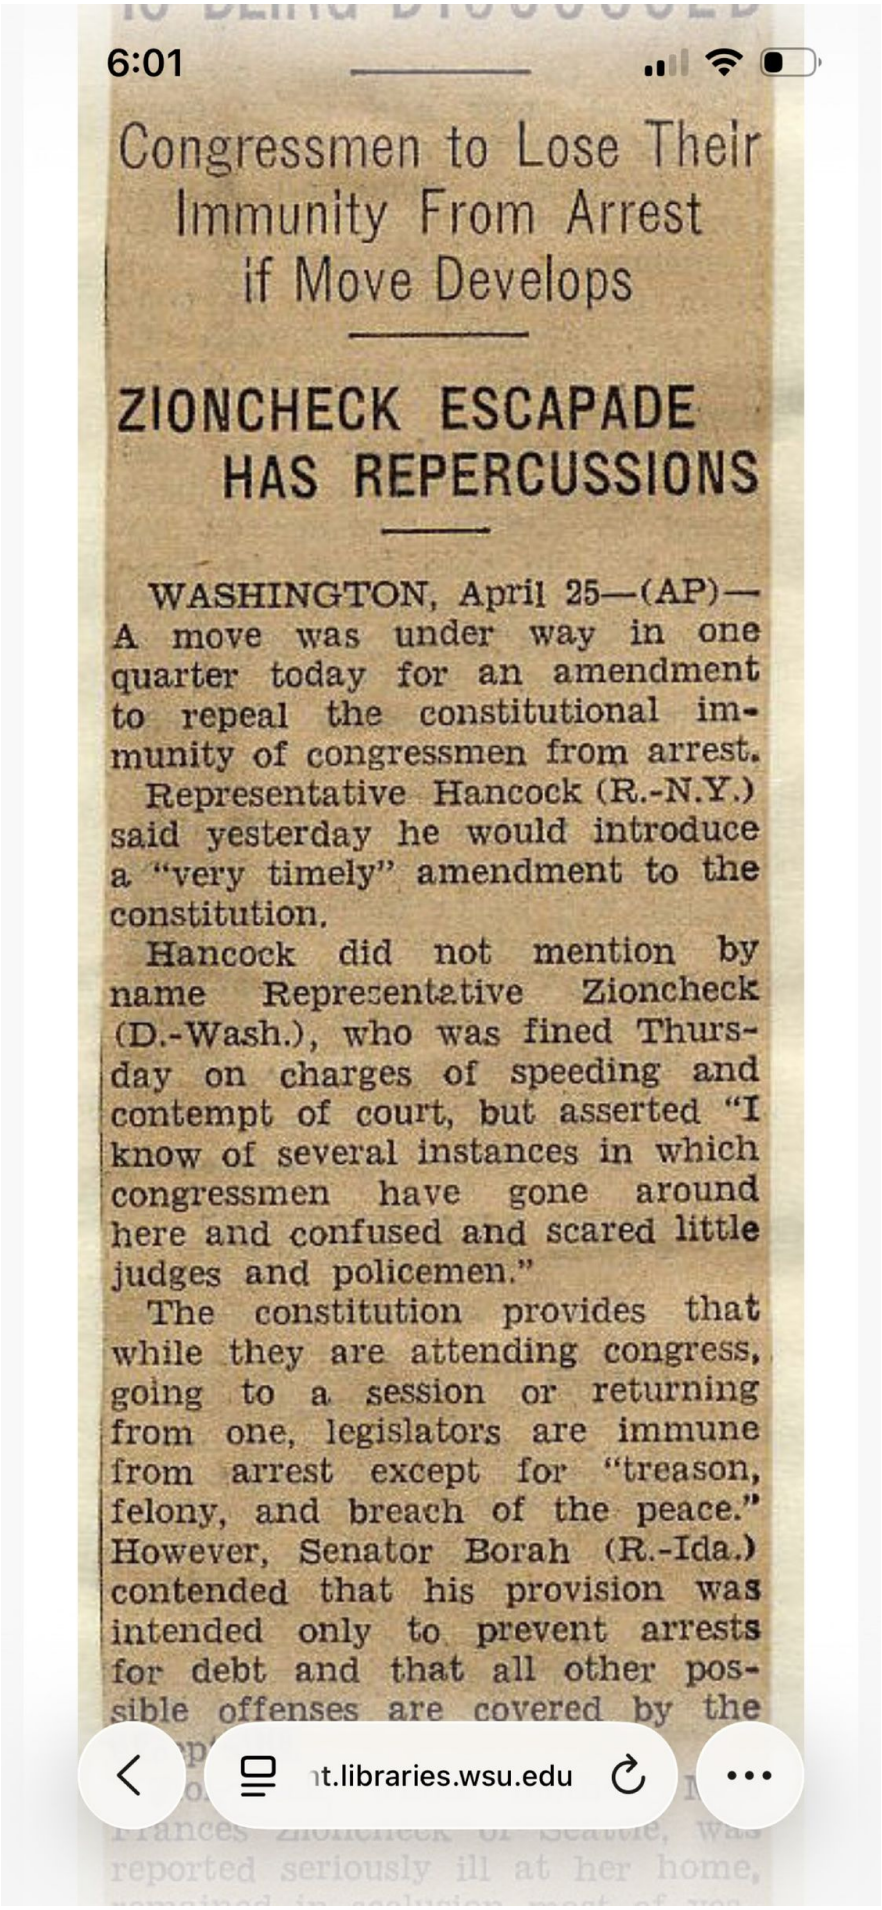

WASHINGTON, Thursday, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Marion A. Zioncheck, widow of the representative who plunged to death recently from an office building in Seattle, today obtained possession of his expensive automobile.

The roadster had been seized some time ago in connection with a $999 damage suit brought against Zioncheck by Mrs. Pamela Schuyler Young, magazine writer, who charged her furniture had been damaged in the apartment she leased here to the representative.

Muncipal Judge Mason Cayton dismissed Mrs. Young's suit today and also granted a motion by counsel for the widow to quash the attachment against the automobile.

Mrs. Zioncheck's counsel contended the only action remaining for Mrs. Young was in District Court because Mrs. Zioncheck had qualified as administratrix of her husband's affairs here, could be sued only in that tribunal.

Congressmen to Lose Their Immunity From Arrest if Move Develops

ZIONCHECK ESCAPADE HAS REPERCUSSIONS

WASHINGTON, April 25—(AP)—A move was under way in one quarter today for an amendment to repeal the constitutional immunity of congressmen from arrest.

Representative Hancock (R.-N.Y.) said yesterday he would introduce a "very timely" amendment to the constitution.

Hancock did not mention by name Representative Zioncheck (D.-Wash.), who was fined Thursday on charges of speeding and contempt of court, but asserted "I know of several instances in which congressmen have gone around here and confused and scared little judges and policemen."

The constitution provides that while they are attending congress, going to a session or returning from one, legislators are immune from arrest except for "treason, felony, and breach of the peace." However, Senator Borah (R.-Ida.) contended that his provision was intended only to prevent arrests for debt and that all other possible offenses are covered by the Fined for Contempt and Speed After Staging Fight.

WASHINGTON, April 23. (AP) —Representative Zioncheck of Washington was sentenced in traffic court today to $20 fine, or 48 hours in jail, for contempt of court in addition to $25 assessed for speeding.

Judge Walter J. Casey at first had made the contempt sentence $20 or 20 days, but after returning to his chambers had discovered he could not sentence to jail for more than 48 hours on this charge.

Zioncheck had been forcibly removed from the courtroom and locked in a cell for creating a disturbance in the courtroom during his trial on a charge of speeding at 70 miles an hour. He pleaded guilty and the $25 fine was added to the $25 collateral forfeited when the representative failed to appear in court Tuesday.

Zioncheck immediately was returned to the detention cell and the judge left the bench.

The representative's secretary was permitted to confer with him in the cell. As Zioncheck was taken out he was overheard to say to her:

"Get in touch with Speaker Byrns immediately."

Immunity Not Asked.

Before the sentence was imposed, Zioncheck stated he had not invoked his congressional immunity "for anything that occurred before the manhandling."

He was acting as his own attorney in arguing the case when Judge Walter Casey announced the court would recess, and started to retire from the bench.

Cools Off in Cell.

"Just a minute," Zioncheck shouted, "what about my case?"

"The court is recessing," Judge Casey told him.

"I'm taking a recess too," Zioncheck replied in a loud voice.

The representative picked up his hat and coat and started to walk out. Several policemen and court bailiffs grabbed him. There was a short scuffle. He was then led to the rear of the courtroom, taken outside, and put in the cell.

No formal charges were lodged, however, for creating the disturbance in the court.

The recess had been ordered by Judge Casey so he might examine the notification given Zioncheck to appear in court. The representative had objected to the form of the notification. The case was scheduled to resume at 1:45 p. m. (E. S. T.) today.

Question Officers.

Acting as his own attorney, Zioncheck closely questioned the policeman about the circumstances surrounding his arrest early Saturday morning.

"Did I deny I was going 70?" he asked, "or that I was going more than 22 miles an hour?"

"No."

"Did I deny I was going 90 miles an hour?"

"No."

At this point Zioncheck told Judge Casey he desired the record to show that he objected to the procedure being followed and that he had refused to appear in court "until it was definitely understood that I came down here merely to accommodate the officer."

Zioncheck asserted he also wanted to make it plain he had refused to appear "on that thing called an attachment."

The recess was taken at this point.

Fights Officers.

Earlier, the youthful representative was taken to the guardroom of the new house office building after a scuffle with a Washington policeman who was attempting to serve him with an attachment to compel his appearance in police court.

When the Washington member failed to appear in court this morning police were ordered to "bring him in bodily."

After a conference of more than half an hour in the guardroom in which words were exchanged, Zioncheck agreed to go to police court and left the house office building accompanied by Sergeant George Hellmuth and another officer.

Eye-witnesses said Hellmuth went to Zioncheck's office today with the attachment. When he remarked that he could not serve it on federal property, the congressman offered to take him to his home.

The two then went outside and got into Zioncheck's new car and drove off.

Jumps Out of Car.

According to some accounts, Zioncheck stepped on the gas and ran the car up to 40 or 45 miles an hour, narrowly missed a wagon and drove back to the house office building and jumped out.

There was a scuffle, witnesses said. By this time capitol police rushed from the office building and took the congressman to the guard room.

Arrested early Saturday morning, Zioncheck had promised to appear after an attachment had been issued for him.

Some highlights of this correspondence include letters Zioncheck received in response to his denunciation of J. Edgar Hoover in 1936, as well as letters documenting internal disputes within the Democratic organization in King and Kitsap counties between 1933 and 1936. In Kitsap County Zioncheck was drawn into a battle, ostensibly over postmaster appointments, between two factions of the party. He was denounced in a February 18, 1936, resolution of the Kitsap County Democratic Executive Committee for misconduct and for breaking faith with the committee.The accession also includes files containing endorsements Zioncheck solicited from other members of Congress for campaign purposes, 1933-1934. Howard M. Findley's courtroom here yesterday as the trial of Norma Zioncheck's petition to break the will of her mother, Mrs. Frances Ziencheck, was started. Mrs. Anna Nadeau is the opposing sister and the one who receives the bulk of the estate, according to the contested will.

Between the sisters also were the memory and deeds of the late Congressman Marion Zioncheck, and in the flesh, pretty, serious and on the side of the plaintiff, his widow, Rubye Zioncheck.

FILMS BECKON

She had flown here from Hollywood where she was making screen tests, to testify for Norma Zioncheck. She will return to the film capital tonight to what she confidently expects to be a career in celluloid.

As dramatic as the setting itself was some of the testimony introduced, and not one of the interested spectators in the courtroom could help feeling the cold hostility that passed between the two young sisters as the story of their mother's last days was unfolded.

Basing her claims to a portion of the estimated $30,000 estate on statements she said her mother and her brother had made, Norma told briefly of her life since coming to this country from Poland, of working, of visiting her family and of helping the late congressman to get an education.

Zioncheck Daught[illegible] Fight Over Estate

The two daughters of Mrs. Frances Zioncheck, and sisters of the late Congressman Marion A. Zioncheck will appear in Superior Court March 2 in a battle over their mother's estate, it was revealed yesterday as Miss Norma Zioncheck petitioned in Probate Court to set aside a will which left the bulk of a $6,000 estate to Mrs. Ann Nadeau, Mrs. Zioncheck's other daughter.

Miss Zioncheck says she and Mrs. Nadeau should share the estate equally.

NURSE DEFENDS ZIONCHECK WILL

Mrs. Frances Zioncheck, mother of the late Congressman Marion A. Zioncheck, was an "exceptionally intelligent and decisive woman," Dr. Thomas Ratigan, Seattle physician, testified today in Superior Judge Howard M. Findley's court, where Mrs. Zioncheck's two daughters are battling over her will. Dr. Ratigan said he attended Mrs. Zioncheck for two years prior to her death last fall.

The physician said that Mrs. Zioncheck showed no signs of mental incompetence but always was alert mentally whenever he visited her, although she sometimes seemed worried over Congressman Zioncheck's "troubles" in Washington, D. C.

Nurse Testifies

Mrs. Celia Kempher, practical nurse who assisted Mrs. Zioncheck in drawing up the contested will, said the woman mentally was competent at the time. Mrs. Kempher said that Mrs. Zioncheck suffered from an halucination that there was no food in the house several weeks after the drawing of the will and after she was worried over Congressman Zioncheck having been confined in an eastern institution.

Attorney Ivan Merrick, representing the estate's administratrix, Mrs. Ann Nadeau, a daughter of Mrs. Zioncheck, failed yes... an effort to halt the t... contended that Newma... attorney for Miss Norma Z..., another daughter, who is contesting the will, had not offered sufficient evidence.

Widow Excused

Mrs. Rubye Nix Zioncheck, attractive widow of the congressman, left the witness stand late yesterday, excused from further witness duty. She refused to comment on whether she would leave immediately for Hollywood to enter motion pictures. Mrs. Zioncheck arrived here by airplane from Hollywood Wednesday. She and Mrs. Nadeau are legal opponents in another action over Mrs. Frances Zioncheck's estate.

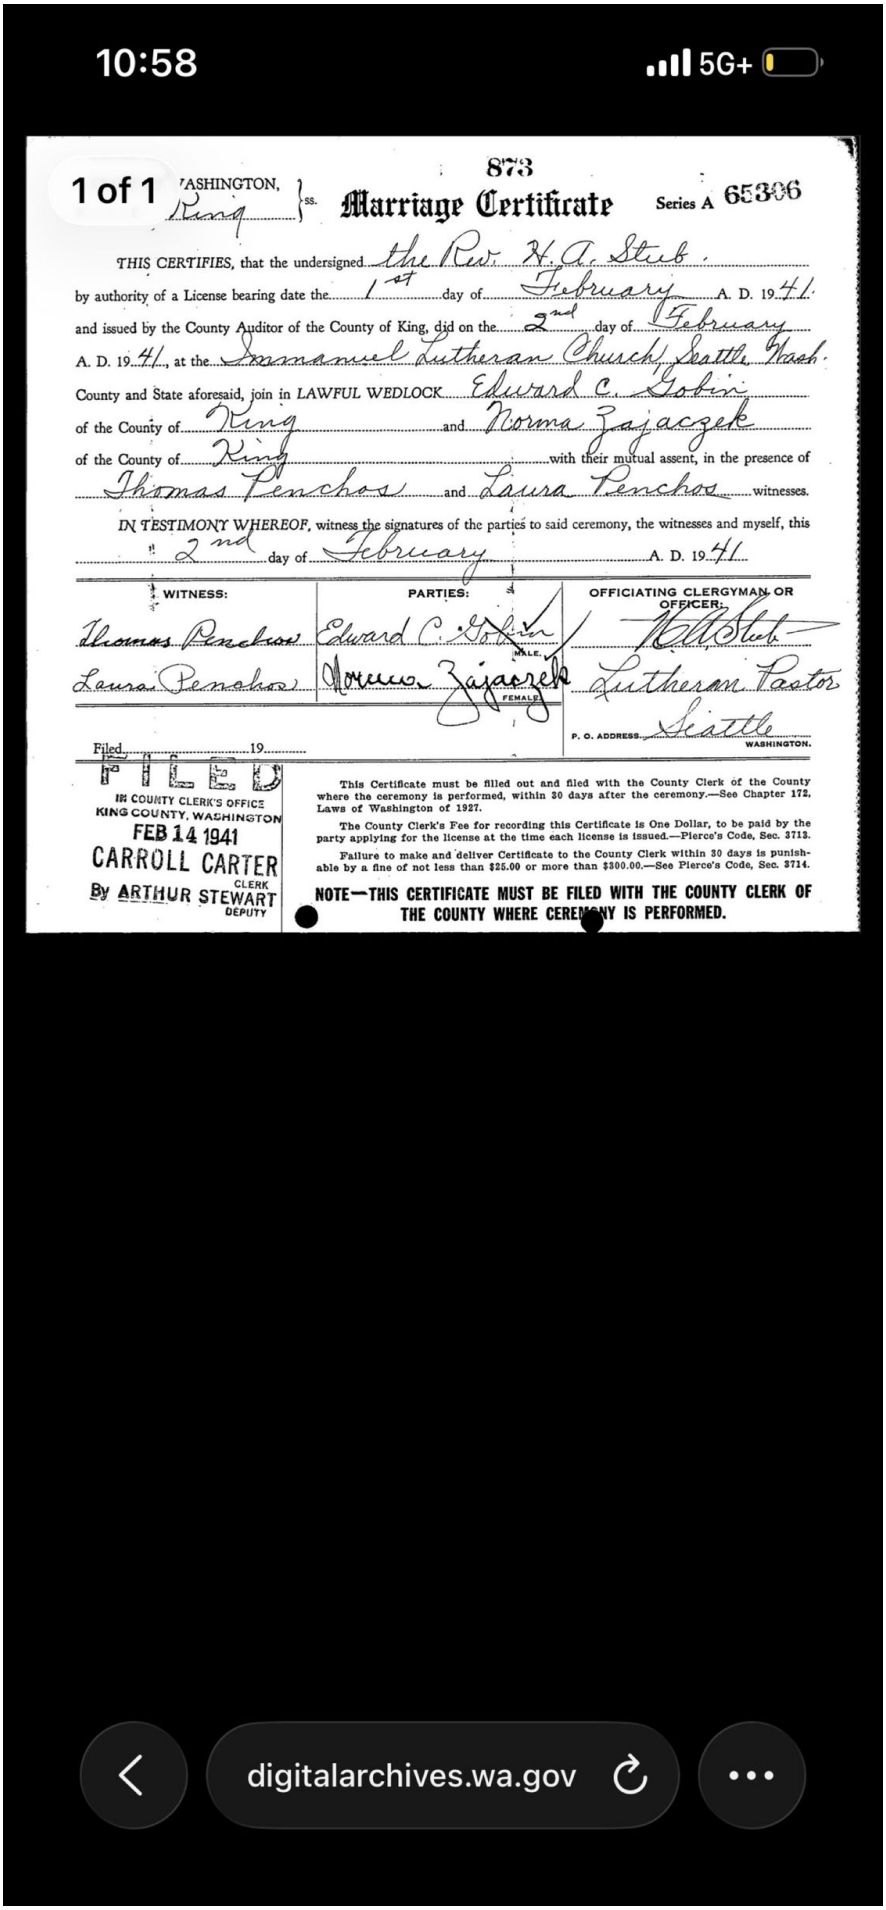

Judge Findley yesterday halted Merrick's questioning of Mrs. Zioncheck relative to parties and escapades in which her husband figured in Washington prior to and after her marriage. Merrick said he wished to show how the former congressman spent money which was sent him by his mother, but Judge Findley held the recital was not pertinent.

Hallucination Told

Dr. Paul Van Arsdel verified Mrs. Rubye Zioncheck's testimony relative to the older woman's "hallucinations that she had no money and no food." The doctor told how relatives tried to keep news of the congressman's escapades from his mother.

First defense witness called yesterday was George Kempher, a former resident at the Zioncheck home. He told how he and his mother, Mrs. Frances Zioncheck's nurse, drew the will, which is challenged by Clark's witnesses on the ground that Mrs. Frances Zioncheck was incompetnet mentally at the time she signed the will.
